

Terence Foo
Managing Director

Terence has significant experience advising clients on their corporate and financial communications programs and initiatives.

His corporate communications experience spans a wide variety of professional and financial services clients, covering investment banking, corporate banking, private banking, private equity, broking, fund management, exchanges, specialized recruitment and corporate restructuring advisors. Terence has also advised on corporate communications issues for a number of multi-national corporations in real estate, gaming, transport and logistics, amongst other areas.

Terence has also worked on headline M&A deals, he has also worked on numerous other transactions, including other mergers, acquisitions, divestments, restructurings, reverse takeovers and take private initiatives.

In 2006, Terence handled four of the five largest IPOs in the Singapore market, and has advised on many cross-border and domestic listings and secondary offers on the Singapore Exchange. His investor relations experience spans many companies listed on the Singapore Exchange.

Prior to joining Gavin Anderson & Company, Terence was a corporate banker for four years with Crédit Industriel et Commercial (CIC), one of the largest banking groups in France. In addition to his knowledge of traditional corporate banking products and services, Terence has experience in project finance and asset finance, specifically with airframes and satellites. He spent the first half of his time with CIC at the group's Paris headquarters and in CIC London, before joining the Asian offshore banking branch in Singapore.

Terence, who lived in France for more than five years, speaks and writes French fluently. He has a Bachelor's degree in Economics from the University of Michigan in Ann Arbor, Michigan, USA.